Preparing Future-Ready Minds: An Interactive Session with Dr. Rajamani Sambasivam

Dr. Rajamani Sambasivam is a distinguished Data Science and Artificial Intelligence leader with extensive experience in driving digital transformation across Fortune 500 organisations. With over 20 international publications, three book chapters and six patents, he has made significant contributions to AI and engineering. The students of the SBIDA Schools in the Chennai Zone had the unique opportunity to interact online with Dr. Rajamani Sambasivam on 19th June 2026. We express our heartfelt gratitude to the Secretary & Correspondent, Shri. A. Senthil Ramesh, for providing the students with this exceptional opportunity to interact with an eminent expert like Dr. Rajamani Sambasivam.

During the engaging and thought-provoking session, students raised several pertinent questions on emerging technologies, Artificial Intelligence, Data Science, career opportunities, cybersecurity and the future of the IT industry.

Drawing from his vast professional experience, Dr. Sambasivam responded to each question with remarkable clarity, insight and practical guidance, inspiring students to become lifelong learners and future-ready professionals. A few of the interesting questions and his enlightening responses are presented below:

Q1. What should students do after college?

Students should embrace lifelong learning rather than relying only on their college degree. Technology changes rapidly, making continuous upskilling essential. Every few years, professionals should be ready to learn, adapt and explore new opportunities. Those who are passionate about a particular field should pursue it wholeheartedly, while others should have the confidence to change direction when necessary.

Q2. What is Data Science?

Data Science combines science and creativity. While algorithms and mathematical models provide accurate solutions, human intuition and innovative thinking are equally important in solving real-world problems. AI can assist data scientists, but human creativity and critical thinking remain indispensable.

AI and Human Thinking - Students should develop strong thinking and reasoning skills before becoming dependent on AI tools. AI should support learning—not replace independent thinking. Critical thinking and logical reasoning are the greatest strengths that humans possess.

Q3. What is the future of Cybersecurity?

Cybersecurity offers enormous career opportunities as the world becomes increasingly connected. With cyber threats evolving every day, professionals in this field must constantly update their knowledge and skills to stay ahead.

Q4. Does AI strain natural resources?

Like every technological advancement, AI has both advantages and challenges. Although AI requires significant resources, including water and energy, technology itself is neither good nor bad. Its impact depends on how responsibly it is developed and used. Individuals must also safeguard their personal data and privacy.

Q5. Should students focus only on their university syllabus?

A university degree provides a strong foundation, but students should also pursue self-learning, certifications, projects and extracurricular activities. A balanced approach helps prepare for the rapidly changing job market and makes students more competitive.

Q6. Can self-driving cars succeed in India?

India's unique traffic conditions, employment needs and infrastructure make large-scale adoption of autonomous vehicles challenging at present. Technology should always be adapted to solve local problems rather than simply replicating solutions from other countries.

Q7. What is AI's impact on the IT industry?

AI is transforming software development by automating routine tasks and improving productivity. While AI-generated code has become highly efficient, human expertise is still essential for solving complex problems, making decisions and ensuring quality.

Q8. How can students remain relevant in the AI era?

Students should strive to understand how AI works rather than merely using AI tools. Developing problem-solving abilities, creativity, logical thinking and domain expertise will help them remain valuable in an increasingly automated world.

Q9. Which skills are most important for the future?

Beyond academic knowledge, students should develop logical reasoning, mathematics, probability and statistics, structured problem-solving, communication skills, curiosity and the ability to work effectively with AI technologies. These skills will distinguish future leaders from routine workers.

Q10. Will AI replace scientists and researchers?

AI is unlikely to replace scientists engaged in advanced research. Scientific discovery requires creativity, innovation and the ability to solve entirely new problems—areas where human intelligence continues to play the central role.

The session left the students inspired, informed and better equipped to navigate the rapidly evolving world of technology and careers.
